Sacramento man indicted for lying about assisting militant group

(Reuters) One of two Iraqi-born men arrested last week on federal terrorism-related charges was indicted by a federal grand jury in Sacramento on Thursday for lying about traveling to Syria and assisting a militant group. Aws Mohammed Younis al-Jayab, 23, who was arrested in Sacramento, is accused of making a false statement when he said he had gone to Turkey to visit his grandmother in late 2013 and 2014. In the indictment released on Thursday, prosecutors said that after going to Turkey, al-Jayab went to Syria and became a member of a "rebel group, militia or insurgent organization." Al-Jayab was one of two men from the Middle East who came to the United States as refugees and were arrested on federal terrorism charges last week in California and Texas of supporting Islamist militant groups. Both men are Palestinians born in Iraq. The man arrested in Houston, Omar Faraj Saeed Al-Hardan, entered the United States as an Iraqi refugee in November 2009, according to a court document. Al-Jayab, 23, came to the United States in 2012 as a refugee from Syria, court documents said. Al-Jayab's lawyer, Ben Galloway, said the community college student planned to plead not guilty in a federal arraignment proceeding set for Jan. 22. "The allegedly false statements relate exclusively to a brief trip overseas two years ago," Galloway said. Both the FBI and Galloway said al-Jayab was not believed to have plotted any attack against the United States. The indictment, which charges al-Jayab with a single count of making a false statement involving international terrorism, lists several instances in which he allegedly lied about his trip and ties to militant organizations. It accuses al-Jayab, who was arrested last week, of also lying about providing material support to the group, which was not named, and assisting in a group where people used or threatened to use weapons against others.

Jakarta attacks: Convicted militant named as attacker

(BBC) Police in Indonesia have identified four out of five of the Jakarta attackers. Two were previously convicted militants. Police named one - Afif Sunakim, seen carrying a gun and rucksack during the attacks. He was given a seven-year jail term for attending a militant camp. All five died in Thursday's attacks, which left two civilians dead and were claimed by Islamic State (IS). Three arrests were made on Friday but it is unclear if they are connected. Security forces battled militants for hours in the busy commercial district where the militants struck. A Canadian and an Indonesian national died, and at least 20 people were injured. The assault ended when two attackers died in a suicide bombing, police say, with the other three killed in gun battles. Following recent IS threats, the country, which had been attacked by Islamist militants several times in the past, had been on high alert. Gen Badrodin Haiti, the national police chief, said Sunakim and one other attacker had both been convicted criminals. Jakarta's chief of police, Inspector General Tito Karnavian, said a hunt was under way for terror cells believed to be behind the attack. Three men were arrested near Jakarta early on Friday, police told local media. A police spokesman, Anton Charliyan, confirmed on Friday that those who organized the attacks were associated with IS. Two of the perpetrators, he added, were "known to have committed similar radical activities some time ago". Earlier, Bahrum Naim, an Indonesian believed to be fighting with IS in Syria, was named as the suspected co-ordinator. Insp Gen Karnavian said Naim's "vision" was to unite various IS-supporting groups across South East Asia. IS released a statement saying it had targeted citizens of countries which are part of the international coalition fighting the group, which controls parts of Syria and Iraq.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

Northern California

A series of storms currently out over the Pacific will impact Northern California throughout this weekend.

- The most significant of these storm systems will sweep across the area on Sunday, bringing heavy rainfall.
- Rainfall totals are expected to range from one and a half to three and a half inches.
- Small scale or burn scar flooding could occur between Sunday and Monday.
- 5 to 9 inches of snowfall is expected in the Sierra Mountains from Yosemite National Park to Kings Canyon National Park. Gusty winds up to 45 miles per hour will also accompany this system above 7000 feet.

Southern California

- A very strong low pressure system north of Hawaii has created large waves that will move into the Southwest California waters late Saturday as a large, very long-period westerly swell.
  - This swell may produce large and powerful surf for exposed west to northwest facing beaches, and the unusually long periods will create a significant risk of sneaker waves, minor coastal flooding and beach erosion.
  - Surf will begin to build Saturday evening on the Central Coast, peaking late Saturday night into early Sunday between 20 to 25 feet on exposed west facing beaches.
  - The surf may build to 15 feet or higher near Ventura Harbor, and the more exposed west-facing beaches of Los Angeles County.
  - The large surf could potentially cause damage to coastal structures such as piers, especially on the Central Coast and may also cause beach erosion and minor coastal flooding, especially during the time of high tides. The highest tides will be during the early morning hours, around 5.4 feet at 0400 hours Sunday at Port San Luis, and around 5.0 feet at 0330 hours for the beaches south of Point Conception.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Wet pattern will persist into next week. Heavy rain is expected on Sunday which will likely result in some flooding across the North Coast. Winds will also be gusty at times Friday night into Saturday morning and again Sunday morning.

Medford Weather:

Showers should gradually end late tonight into Friday morning.

Reno Weather:

A series of storm systems will impact the Sierra through next week with periods of gusty winds, mountain snow, and valley rain. A weak storm brings light snow and rain late tonight and Saturday then a milder and wetter storm system arrives Sunday. This storm could linger through mid-week and produce substantial snow for the sierra, but details remain uncertain at this time.

San Francisco Weather:

Series of systems to impact our area through the end of next week with the strongest system expected Sunday evening through Tuesday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Current system is winding down today bringing mountain snow and travel difficulties. Higher snow levels expected after today. Next system will follow quickly behind tonight and Saturday. Wettest system through the forecast period expected between Sunday and Monday mornings. Some small scale or burn scar flooding could occur during this time. More precipitation expected through next week.

Hanford Weather:

A succession of weak storm systems will track across Northern California during the next several days and bring occasional episodes of light rain and high elevation snow to the Central California interior.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles weather:

Periods of light showers are possible for areas in and north of Santa Barbara County Friday through Saturday. Otherwise, expect partly cloudy skies with temperatures near to slightly below normal. Temperatures warm slightly Sunday before rain chances return Monday night through Tuesday.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

A trough of low pressure moving inland through the Great Basin will bring strong gusty west winds to the mountains and deserts today and a slight chance of showers late this morning into this afternoon, mainly near the mountains and for San Diego County. Weak high pressure aloft will bring slow warming through the weekend with periods of mid and high clouds.

Southeast California Weather:

A series of weak storm systems will move through this weekend clipping the Sierra and southern Great Basin with some shower chances at times. Gusty winds will impact the Sierra and western Mojave Desert today. Significant snowfall is possible for the southern Sierra early next week.
